FONTAINEBLEAU

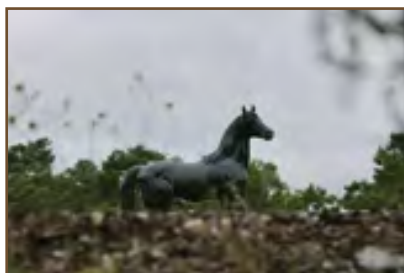

The city of Kings' show

ECAHO B INTERNATIONAL SHOW

In Fontainebleau, the Grand Parquet is a vast estate dedicated to equestrian sports and major outdoor events, situated in the heart of the Fontainebleau Forest in Seine-et-Marne, some sixty kilometres south-east of Paris. Formerly a hunting reserve that has been transformed into an Olympic venue, it now hosts equestrian competitions and other major international events. The Grand Parquet is an iconic site of France's equestrian heritage, renowned both for the quality of its facilities and the diversity of its events.

Once a hunting reserve for the kings of France, this vast wooded area was transformed in the 1920s into a mecca for equestrian sport. It became a key venue for the modern pentathlon at the 1924 Paris Olympics. Since then, horses have never left the site. Today it is recognised as one of the finest equestrian facilities in Europe and has served as the training centre for the Paris 2024 Olympic Games.

It was here that the fourth edition of The City of Kings show took place, conceived and hosted by Margot Chazel, who, with foresight and intelligence, brought a prestigious Arabian horse beauty show to this historic and evocative setting. She chose the perfect venue to meet the needs of the most discerning breeders and to prioritise the welfare of the Arabians taking part in the competition within an elegant setting.

In just one month, following the sudden rescheduling of several European shows, Margot Chazel and her young, enthusiastic team managed to organise a highly respectable event, paying close attention to detail to ensure participants enjoyed both a high-quality technical experience and a convivial atmosphere during their free time, all delivered with good taste and great generosity. It was no easy feat, but it was achieved thanks to the support of sponsors and breeders, and the determination of participants and trainers who were keen to see this event take place. Thanks to them, the number of 50 registered horses was reached, a very respectable number given the tight timeframe.

Events like the City of Kings in Fontainebleau must be supported as much as possible because, in Europe, they form the foundation of the system for showcasing the stock of small and medium-sized breeders who, beyond the big numbers, are the ones who breathe life into the global breeding scene. It is important to support this system because, in fact, it is what allows the global market to thrive, grow and flourish.

Furthermore, events such as this, streamlined in their management and scale, are the local response to major global events which, despite their importance, risk excluding breeders who prefer to devote their resources more to training than to participating in events where the focus is primarily on major Arabian breeders.

Giving these breeders the space and opportunities they deserve can ensure that the entire system has a future in which no one is left behind and in which local breeders, too, can have their say on the international stage.

The two days of the Fontainebleau show, 13 and 14 June, ran smoothly and were punctuated by convivial moments and entertainment, from the opening ceremony to the official presentation of the judges, from the vaulting display to the gala evening with live country music, which provided an opportunity to bring all the guests together in a relaxed and enjoyable atmosphere.

Don't miss the next edition of the City of Kings show, and the chance to savour the atmosphere captured in the photos by our photographer Simone Bergamaschi from the 2026 edition, which you'll find on the following pages.
