

Close your eyes and imagine a world...
 where emotions and pure passion are the only things that lead your mind...

Welcome Home !

Emma, 25-years-old, wasn't destined to become a photographer.
 Born in Saint - Malo, in the West of France, she's a rider above all.
 After graduating from a Masters in Marketing in Paris, she moved back to her treasured Brittany to live next to her horses.

When she bought her first arabian horse in 2008, she joined the arabian horse world and started to take some pictures here and there when she went to see her first shows.

The idea of becoming a photographer came later when she fell off her young arabian stallion and was unable to ride for months. Photography was the only link between her and the horses she always loved deeply.

So, she decided to take the plunge, to mix work and pure passion...

She's not only a horses photographer, she likes to work with all kinds of animals.

What does she like about them? Their natural beauty, feelings and expressions because animals don't lie.
 Far from photographing animals standing in perfect positions, or with wonderful stagings, she prefers the instant's beauty, the capture of the ultimate expression...
